3. Update on the IETF’s technical work

Roman Danyliw reports that the IESG recently performed a Last Call for a posting rights (PR) action for someone who violated the code of conduct. This Last Call concluded with an approval of the action. For context, this is an uncommon action in the IETF.

This action also generated feedback from the community about the PR action mechanism. In the read-out of the Last Call, the IESG has observed the community has suggested the need for a more systemic approach to moderation and announced the creation of a new forum for that discussion. The IESG’s recommendation is that the IETF needs a smaller, narrowly focused working group to do this policy work.

Pursuant to Step 4b of the “Venue identification and selection” process defined by the IETF LLC, the IESG has been asked to assess the viability of a meeting in China for IETF 125. To gather feedback, the IESG launched a community survey that will close the Saturday after IETF 120. The IESG plans to assess this input, deliberate, and return an answer to the LLC by early September. Thank you to Jay Daley and others for their support in administering the survey.

In addition to the previously reported concerns over the availability of affordable hotel rooms, we have also had reports of visa applications being rejected and others still to be processed after some months. The Canadian government is open to us communicating with them directly about visa issues and so we have been providing information in support of applications where we are confident that the applications are genuine. Separately, we have one person trying hard to get us to provide a letter of invitation and visa support who has not registered for the meeting and has no history of mailing list participation, and so we continue to refuse this request.

IETF 124 Montreal

This venue has now been booked and announced.
6. Tools/RPC/RSWG/RSCE

Infrastructure migration including mail migration

With the exception of the mail migration, the rest of our services have been migrated away from AMS. This includes Datatracker, website, RFC server and more. However, we are still obliged to pay the full cost of the AMS service until the mail infrastructure is moved and given that we are now up against the change embargo in place before IETF 120, this is likely to mean that it will not be completed until August.

Additionally, some of the services that were initially migrated to AWS by our original contractor are still running there and incurring a significant maintenance charge. Again, the plan is to move these off during August.

The mail migration was aborted at the last minute, when it became apparent that the contractor was not ready for the migration, despite multiple assurances in the days leading up to it that they were. The CEO is conducting an internal review and we expect to hear the results of that before the board meeting.

Just before the planned mail migration, a number of community members raised objections that our chosen service for sending email, Amazon SES, does not support IPv6 (this only affects outgoing email not incoming). I replied at length, summarising our position and apologising for poor communications, which we are addressing but otherwise noting that our plans are unchanged. Ultimately, we provide an excellent community engagement opportunity with the monthly tools meeting, but very few people are joining those, and we need more engagement so that issues like this are highlighted much earlier in the process.

7. IESG/IAB/IRTF/Trust

IESG assessment of feasibility of a meeting in China

The IESG have announced their plan and by the time of the board meeting, the survey should be well underway.

8. Communications/Outreach

Meeting outreach
Coordination with, and outreach, to local communities has begun for IETF 121 Dublin and IETF 122 Bangkok. This represents a shift from past practice, where meeting-related communications and outreach efforts began only after the previous meeting concluded. By the end of the year we expect to have in place by the end a rolling 1-year-ahead effort, one goal of which is to provide more opportunity for potential IETF participants in meeting regions to plan to attend in person.

9. Fundraising

IETF 120 plans
These will be provided verbally during the Board + Senior Staff section.

10. Miscellaneous
Nothing to report.

Fundraising plans for the 120 meeting were discussed.

2. AOB - Select IESG Retreat Readout
During the recent IESG retreat, the IESG discussed the “Experience of Women in the IETF” report. An action plan was developed. The moderation mailing list noted in the PR action summary above was one of those action items. Other discussions included potentially growing that Ombudsteam with non-community members; and providing additional guidance around document/WG contributions. Discussions will continue with related groups.
